ESG: Environmental, Social, and Governance Practice

Environmental, Social, and Governance (ESG) considerations increasingly influence today's markets and businesses across the planet are focusing on assessing and minimizing their impact on the planet. While ESG disclosure is still voluntary on its most part, investors and consumers are growingly considering ESG factors in their investments.

Gornitzky & Co.'s multidisciplinary approach and its wide range of expertise areas allow it to advise its clients in all ESG aspects and provide a holistic approach to multidimensional ESG considerations.

Our team provides legal advice on a variety of areas, including clean-tech and renewable energy, sustainability and environment, green financing, regulations, private and public corporate governance, compliance and enforcement, labor law and litigation, and is assembled of cross-practice attorneys that are committed to helping clients navigate the rapidly changing landscape of ESG. We provide tailor-made counselling to our clients, assisting them in mitigating the risks associated with their activities.

The firm's commitment to achieving optimal results for its clients while maintaining proper ethical, social and environmental conduct and culture in all areas of its activity, serves as the basis for our ESG team services.
