Telecoms & Media

Gornitzky and Co. is one of Israel's leading Telecommunications and Media firms, with an extensive and well-established practice in these areas. The firm is recognized by the legal community and clients as a specialist in the various aspects of this field, including content, technology, licensing, regulation and maintaining means of control over license holders.

As a well-known proficient firm in these sectors, for utilizing our expertise in all areas of commercial law, we represent our domestic and international telecoms and media clients in various regulatory matters, commercial matters, legal disputes, acquiring broadcasting rights and licenses, purchasing advanced communication systems and in the unique zone of financing media corporations. We have also represented clients in telecommunications-related appeals before the Israeli Supreme Court.

The firm's clientele includes major communications companies (including some of Israel's leading television providers, cellular service providers and telephony companies), as well as start-up companies in the fields of telecommunications, satellites, broadcasting, information technology, and more.

Our reputation, knowledge and extensive client base has led the firm to participate in some of the largest and most intricate financing, infrastructure, equipment, technology and media transactions in the Israeli market, including with foreign media agencies and in complex media regulation proceedings.
